Reality check

From the sources

The work

- BHU's M.Com is a two-year, four-semester general programme admitted through the CUET (PG) Commerce paper COQP08.
- These pages do not describe the study or what graduates go on to do.

Entry requirements

- Delhi University accepts B.Com (Hons.), B.Com (Pass/Programme), a bachelor's in Commerce, B.M.S., B.B.S., B.B.A. and similar business degrees with 50% (45% for SC, ST and PwBD), and candidates must appear in the CUET (PG) paper COQP08.
- BHU names B.Com, B.Com (Honours) or B.Com (Honours)-FMM with at least 50%.
- IGNOU's M.Com (open and distance learning) asks for graduates in any discipline.
- CUTN lets candidates without a CUET (PG) score sit its own entrance test.

Trade-offs to consider

- CUTN's notice says registering and expressing willingness gives no assurance of admission, with seats filled on merit within each category.
- Delhi University's second M.Com category is limited to its own graduates, and IGNOU lists INR 10,200 per year for national students, with exam fees not included.
